Awareness of Awareness

The predictions of Gwig the sorcerer are vindicated through humbuggery. This parallels that thoughts are adaptable to any interpretation as long as they receive the attention that they demand.

Awareness of Conflict

There is a contest between the humbug wizard and the real sorcerer to see which is to survive. The wizard wins the contest of illusion but then the sorcerer stops the breath of the wizard. In response the wizard puts together a sword and cuts the sorcerer in two.

This parallels the conflict between deception and actuality. In this conflict deception and emptiness win. Decisive division of concept is a major factor.

Awareness of Judgment

The princess is picked from the Royal Bush.

This parallels allowing judgment to judge itself. Judgment is directed by influence rather than by force.
